Category:Minecraft Category:Shader programs Category:Shaders Category:Video game mods Conventional techniques for expanding or widening the rear window of an automobile or other vehicle include the addition of an auxiliary rear window. Such additional rear window is made of transparent material such as glass. By so doing, the original rear window is thereby expanded to form an enlarged, generally transparent window portion. The addition of an auxiliary rear window as described above creates a transition between the appearance of a vehicle with a conventional rear window and an all glass "coupe" appearance. The desired appearance in the prior art is an all glass, streamlined, coupe-like appearance. The addition of an auxiliary rear window in the prior art results in a need for a non-transparent gap between the original rear window and the auxiliary window. However, a slight gap between the original rear window and the additional auxiliary window is necessary in order to accommodate the shape of the auxiliary window and to permit the two windows to fit together during installation and styling. The method of installation in the prior art has required that a certain amount of the glass be removed to accommodate the shape and size of the 82138339de
