The future of a changed Mars is in your hands. Stop at nothing. Things are heating up below-and this time it's not your fault. It's time to look to the future with new eyes. The growing habitats will be the first to come under pressure, but new research technologies could be the salvation to the first colonists. Through your research and decisions, you could be the savior or the doom of Mars. The fate of the human race now lies in your hands. A changed Mars awaits you, scientists, pioneers, and colonists. It is a future that you have shaped, and a future that you are still shaping. Just remember... the new world is always warmer, wetter, and more oppressive. You must make sure that it is suited to your kind of life. The new humanity will be you. You are a part of the new human race now. Key Features Recon, Control, and Expand - Construction is at the heart of Surviving Mars: Players can build habitable structures. With the variety of available buildings, players can for every imaginable need. Build a farm and expand to house more colonists. Or, build a garrison to fend off attacks and prepare for the next wave of colonists. Construct a landing pad to send your spacecraft or return the initial colonists. Using the Construction Tree and dynamic upgrades, players can develop and customize each base as their needs change. Choose your base and choose your path. Base and Vehicle Upgrades: New research modules will unlock the ability to build more efficient colonies, diverse habitats, custom vehicles and special units. The Age of Exploration has begun. Explore the depths of Mars. Back to the Base - Colony development is centered around the base's comprehensive construction tree. Players can unlock and customize a Colony by building the number of structures required, and from there, can choose to expand vertically or horizontally into other structures. Mine Your Own Business - With the new extraction system, players can mine resources from passing asteroids, using either the standard construction tree, or a special new extraction system. Build the Future of Human Space Exploration - Players can develop and customize their base with a new construction system and vehicle upgrades. These new advancements can be expanded and applied as the colony's needs change, with new technologies allowing players to explore and develop a base to their specifications. All of the decisions made here will determine the final outcome of this colony. Back to the Bases - Expand your colony
