Question: I have three models: Post, Author and Comment. Both Authors and Comments contain a foreign key to Post. Model Comment class Comment(models.Model): user = models.ForeignKey(settings.AUTH_USER_MODEL, blank=True, default=None, on_delete=models.SET_NULL) text = models.TextField() post = models.ForeignKey(Post, on_delete=models.CASCADE) Model Author class Author(models.Model): name = models.CharField(max_length=100) avatar = models.ImageField(default=settings.DEFAULT_IMAGE_URL) Question's solution: A user can "comment" a post by running following command: python manage.py shell import Comment comment = Comment.objects.create(text='foo', post=post) comment.user.save() I need to record author of the comment in Author's table, but, we cannot add another field to Author. If I add this to models.py: @models.permalink @models.has_permalink @receiver(post_save, sender=Author) def create_user_profile(sender, instance, created, kwargs): if created: UserProfile.objects.create(user=instance) instance.author.save() When comment is created, all the Author's fields are updated, but, when comment.user.save() executes, error occurs: Cannot assign "": "UserProfile.user" must be a "Author" instance. Question's solution (For fix the problem, I remove save() method from comment.user, and add author property to comment's ForeignKey-ed model. Comment.user = models.ForeignKey

In H-Hour: World's Elite, you are on the frontline of a fictitious global conflict during the Cold War. Your objectives are to help the US and Soviet forces liberate key territories on a strategically important continent, such as the Northern States, or the Caucasus. Use your modern weapons and vehicles to fight for freedom and decide the outcome of the conflict. The game features online and offline modes, a story campaign, vehicles and persistent progression. It also features an extensive weapon database with over 600 weapons, authentic Soviet, French, German and American vehicles and authentic infantry equipment. In H-Hour you are placed into a frontline environment where you must escort convoys and vehicles, destroy enemy supply depots and regain control of key territories. Due to the vast differences in gameplay between the Soviet and Western forces, the weapon set also reflects the era and equipment used by each of the participating nations, giving you access to a huge arsenal. Many western fans of the game with an interest in the Cold War era came to H-Hour through The First Great Victory: Red Army vs. Nazi Germany and will be glad to now know that H-Hour offers a larger scale combat experience with plenty of vehicles, weapons and landscapes to explore. Key Features: Evolution: Play the game you want to experience. The single player story campaign, online and multiplayer modes are all completely free of in-game purchases or fees. Combat: Fight for freedom in multiplayer or take the role of the Soviet or American forces and defend key territories on a historically authentic map in the single player campaign. Vehicles: Play as the Soviet or the American forces and use authentic vehicles and weapons. Historical Weapon Database: Hundreds of weapons, both real and fictional, representing over 600 different weapons from the era. Persistent Progression: Build up your character, unlock more weapons and vehicles and improve your gear and faction standing. Complexed Multiplayer Experience: There are multiple game modes and gameplay types. The game is more than just shooting: you must escort convoys and vehicles, destroy supply depots and regain control of key territories. Online: Fight in large scale battles between the Soviet and American forces. See what real combat is like and test your skills in a large online environment. Soviet Weapons: In addition to the vast western weapons arsenal, you will also find weapons and equipment used by the Soviet forces, such as the AK-47, Galil and Dragunov sniper rifle. Action-Packed Missions: The campaign offers over
