You have a server application that needs to be monitored. You have an application that needs to be monitored and you need to maintain your server at the same time. You have an IT team that needs to administrate a network of servers, clients, and windows PCs and you need to be able to monitor, analyze, and remote connect to server application for just about any task you can think of. If this description fits you, let me tell you about Devnix Server Monitoring and Management Products. IMonitor Enterprise Application Monitor v5.0.0.0 Now you can count on MTS to help you monitor software and devices on your network, centralize application data that might otherwise be scattered throughout the enterprise, and provide automatic notification of unexpected software or system conditions. What's more, MTS provides a flexible environment for monitoring, diagnosing, reporting and responding to all your business systems. With MTS, it's easy to see what's going on in your network at any point in time - whether it's the performance of your software applications, servers or physical assets. It's also easy to diagnose network problems and, with support for most file and email applications, MTS can help you take better advantage of the information generated within them. Instantly see who's accessing what files and which applications are running on which machines, how long they've been running, and whether they're sending or receiving data. Monitor TCP/IP connections and view data sent and received by applications for maximum insight into network activity. Reliable, updatable monitoring and reporting is built into the application and manages itself, providing reports of operating conditions, uptime, security breaches, performance issues and any other relevant conditions that apply to the software or device being monitored. Users can quickly create reports, watch the activity being reported, and immediately respond to alarms, eliminating the need for more manual paperwork.
